PASADENA ROOF ORCHESTRA

LONDON SINCE 1969

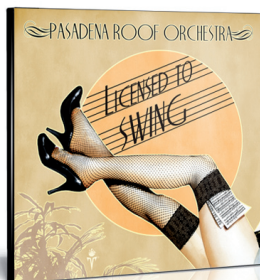

Licensed To Swing

It's the year 1969. A man makes the first step on the moon. The Beatles play their last public concert.
The first Woodstock happens ...

... and the Pasadena Roof Orchestra gets its licence to swing when over 1000 original dance band arrangements are discovered in an attic by founder-member, John Arthy. But you know that story, don't you?
And the rest – as they say – is history!

More than 40 years on from that incredible find, the Orchestra's repertoire has been shaken again – not stirred! The best 1920's and 30's tunes are the simple ingredients for that cocktail. So, sit back and take a sip of the orchestra's new programme Licensed To Swing.
